

Brush Strokes

By Mary Baumgartner

July 2016 Vol. 9 No. 7

Wonderful World of Watercolor Huge Success

The 11th annual WWW show was held May 20 to June 16th at the Fountain City Art Center with the reception Friday evening, May 20 at 6:30. Regardless of the rainstorm that blew in, there were many brave souls who came and one comment from a visitor was “this is the best one yet and I haven’t missed a one of them.”

The painting displayed is “Split Rock Lighthouse” and was painted by Susan Bedwell. The colors are bright, the contrast really excellent and it drew a lot of attention.

In all there were 20 paintings exhibited and they were all “winners.” This show each year gives the students of Mary Baumgartner a reason to learn how to display their work, and some were even sold when the exhibit was ended. This painting (left) was sold and another one like it is being painted now for another customer.

The Fountain City Art Center has an exhibit room with dividers and windows high above and close together so there is plenty of light. The workrooms are in the back area as well as the main exhibit room when there isn’t a show going on. This is year 12 of its existence and there is a shop in the front for all kinds of art. The Center has classes in just about every medium on the market, and below are three more that were shown.

Winter Visitor by Nan Scott

Surfer Chick by Susan Hale

Who's to Know? by Lin Stillwell